

THINKING AND FEELING?

HEARING?

SEEING?

SAYING AND DOING?

Seems like there are less number of openings on LinkedIn

Every opening on LinkedIn asks for 2+, 5+ years of experience!

Where has my application reached? I wish I could find out.

Let me open and register on multiple websites to see job openings.

I heard there is an opening at the library on-campus. I want to know more.

How can I get referrals? I wish I could reach out to the alumni.

I wish I new someone is that company! I am definitely fit for that role.

I see on Facebook that my aunt works in Amazon. Should I reach out to her?

I would be good know to know the frequently asked questions in interviews

So many openings that I see elsewhere are not listed on on these recruiting platforms.

I heard about the recruiting platform tie-up with the university after I started the process

I received Campus placement event notification via email.

I hear so many friends got placed after their internships

My batch-mates have made such amazing resumes.

I heard premium membership on LinkedIn brings you top on the list of applicants.

My friend has an uncle working in the industry. That is a gateway to so many contacts.

I check three different websites for openings, connections, and salaries.

I make sure to apply to a lot of places everyday.

I check salary and reviews of the posting always.

I have to fill so many forms feeding in the same information when applying.

How do I prepare well for the interview?

I set notification from different website to get job opening listings.

PAINS

Difficult to understand interface

Multiple forms to fill for every different opening

A few features not optimized for the mobile view

Some forums did not enable messaging recruiter/current employees

GAINS

Easy and quick job application methods

Preparation checklist/topics for a particular job opening

Reaching out to the industry professionals for more chances of success in the application process

Explore roles and average salaries